UNDERSTANDING AND SUPPORTING BLACK CHILDREN ON THE AUTISM SPECTRUM

Join members of the TDSB Autism Regional Services team and Kelly Bron Johnson for an informative and supportive session designed for families raising Black children on the autism spectrum.

This session will provide a clear overview of Autism Regional Services, highlighting the range of supports available to TDSB students across various school settings. In addition, Kelly Bron Johnson will share her approach to parenting autistic children with acceptance and understanding. She will offer encouragement on creating a strong support system and building a collaborative team around your family to support your child’s growth and development. Families will also learn about community resources and organizations that can further support their child and family.

Whether you are new to services or looking to deepen your understanding, this session will provide practical information, connection, and reassurance.
